Wounded warrior to host a webinar on bridging the divide between civilians and the military

COLUMBUS, Ohio – The State of Ohio, Class of 2019 Veterans Hall of Fame inductee and community champion Al Burzynski will share his insight on how businesses, government, and society can better connect with America’s armed forces warriors, veterans, and their families February 20, 2020, at 11 a.m.

“There are so many patriotic people in the public and the private sector and government, who recognize the challenges those who answered America’s military call to service and they want to do so much to support them, but oftentimes they don’t know where to begin,” said veterans’ advocate and founder for i4ni Studio Rick Isbell.

During the 30-minute webinar, Burzynski will share some of his lessons learned from his 30 years of professional, personal and volunteer experience as a Soldier, public affairs officer, and marketing strategist serving the military, public, and private sector.

Topics Burzynski will cover:

- Things you wanted to ask of the military warriors, but you were afraid or didn't know how to ask.
- Exploration of the military, warrior culture.
- Addressing military stereotypes and overcoming the military/civilian divide.

Isbell added: "The military and civilian community need to come together as one and communicate effectively to understand each other, discuss key issues and find common ground to better serve the warriors and their families in America."

To register for the 30-minute online webinar happening February 20, 2020, from 11 a.m. – 11:30 a.m. visit Think Tank Strategic Public Relations or learn more about the event by checking out the smore here.

The Honor.Celebrate.Inspire.™ initiative brings together veteran support organizations, businesses committed to corporate responsibility to create a sea of goodwill to show appreciation and provide support for America’s warriors and their families by giving of their time, talent, and resources.
